A visit that inspires

A new IKEA store model | 3-store pilot proposal

The list is easy to bring. Finding the thing shouldn't be this hard.

People visit about three times a year, usually with a list. Visits feel long and tiring. One in three leaves without what they came for. The maze has a purpose—but now it can work against us.

People come to picture life at home.

They don't just want to be sold furniture. They want to imagine how life could work in their home—and get help making it real.

The best moments are simple: a room setting that sparks an idea. A co-worker who listens and helps.

A new visit, built around you

Plan. Explore. Take home.

PLAN

Book a 45-minute home-planning session online before you visit.

EXPLORE

Follow a shorter, guided path through five room inspirations matched to your plan.

TAKE HOME

Pick up what you need at one point. The rest is delivered.

Maya leaves with a plan—not just a bag.

First home. Living-room photos on her phone.

A planner helps her make sense of the space.

Three room settings bring the options to life.

Ninety minutes later, Maya leaves with a plan—and a delivery date.

Illustrative pilot targets • NPS +8 points

-30%

Visit time

20%

Visitors book a session

+10%

Basket size

The 6-month pilot

- MONTH 1 Train co-workers
- MONTHS 2–3 Soft launch
- MONTHS 4–6 Full pilot and measure

PEOPLE

Store manager sponsors

12 trained home-planning co-workers per store

TOOL

A booking tool in the IKEA app for visitors to reserve a planning session.

Back a 3-store pilot

Let's make visiting

IKEA the best part of making a home.